

WEEK 16 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 70% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

ANTHONY RICHARDSON (IND) VS TEN

Over the last few weeks, he hasn't improved much as a passer, but he is running the ball more, with at least nine rush attempts in three of his last four games. This has led to four rushing touchdowns during this span and against this beatable TEN defense, I can imagine him continuing this trend. While his upside is limited because of his passing volume (failed to surpass 200 passing yards in three straight games), his value is as a rusher which gives him a higher floor than some of the other options.

AARON RODGERS (NYJ) VS LAR

Coming off one of his better games of the season, he has flashed some of the top-ten upside that we saw earlier in the season. Over his last five games, he has thrown at least 180 passing yards and multiple touchdowns in three of those games. He also has thrown more than 275 passing yards in consecutive games. Against an inconsistent LAR defense that has given up 30 points in two of their last four, Rodgers is a top-12 low-upside streaming option that I would prefer over the below alternatives.

COOPER RUSH (DAL) VS TB

I know the name could sound more appealing, but he has played better recently, throwing multiple touchdowns in three of his last five games. However, he has failed to surpass 200 passing yards in two of their previous three games, which limits his overall upside and makes him matchup-dependent. This week, he's facing a TB defense that has given up over 21 points in one game since their bye week, which is a bit concerning. However, as a last-resort streaming option, he's interesting.

4

MAC JONES (JAX) VS LV

I hope you never have to stream him in anything more than superflex leagues, as he has a high enough upside worth streaming but an equally low floor when things are falling apart. In the previous three games, he has thrown two touchdowns and surpassed 200 yards in two while throwing four interceptions in those same games. Facing a LV defense that is historically below-average and gave up at least 27 points in three of their last four games since their bye week.
