

WEEK 3 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 60% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

GREEN BAY PACKERS @ CLE

This one feels obvious and is not likely to qualify in the future, so here we go. While they have been one of the hottest teams, last week, they were barely a top 12 defense. Having generated four sacks in back-to-back games and not allowing 20 points, they face a good matchup against CLE next week and then face DAL the following week, making them my top streaming option. They had tough matchups against DET and WAS, so I anticipate they could potentially finish in the top five.

2

SEATTLE SEAHAWKS VS NO

Although it may seem lazy to focus on the NO offense, this recommendation is actually about the SEA defense. Forcing multiple turnovers and generating a sack in each game while allowing less than 20 points, they have been a top 5 defense. While I don't expect this trend to continue, I believe this is the team's last appearance on this list for a while. If you missed GB, this could be a strong consolation, as they might be good enough to be a top 12 option against most matchups, but definitely top ten this week.

3

CINCINNATI BENGALS @ MIN

While they may not be a good defense in the NFL, they are a solid defense in fantasy football, forcing multiple turnovers and generating a sack in back-to-back games. This week, they are facing a MIN offense that will be starting a backup QB after scoring six points last week. I am confident that they will continue to force turnovers and generate pressure even if they allow 20 points, making them a top 15 streaming option with top ten upside that will likely be available after waivers due to their reputation.

4

ARIZONA CARDINALS @ SF

Coming off a strong performance last week, they will be facing an SF offense that scored 26 points against NO despite starting Mac Jones. However, I'm not letting that distort my opinion on this injured offense that will not be getting any of its big playmakers back. This defense hasn't been too consistent, but I think the AZ offense will put their defense in good positions to force turnovers or generate sacks even if they allow 20 points. While not exciting, they are a last-resort top 15 streaming option.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM