

WEEK 2 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 90% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JARED GOFF (DET) @ BUF

While he was outside of the top-12 last week, he still threw for over 200 yards and two touchdowns, which is fine. He's likely rostered, so this is a brief reminder that if you're not confident in your QB1, then he is a great option as they face the defense that gave up over 250 passing yards and two touchdowns to C.J. Stroud, something he did only twice last season. It's not the best matchup, but for DET to win, they need to keep up with a BUF offense that scored more than 30 points against a better defense. I consider Goff one of my preferred options if available.

2

BAKER MAYFIELD (TB) VS CLE

There are very few redeeming things I can say about last week, except that he still runs the ball on occasion, and if he scores a touchdown, that normally would boost him into the top-12. The TB offense moved the ball; unfortunately, turnovers prevented scoring opportunities, and if he threw one touchdown, we wouldn't be upset. Last season, a "down" season, he threw for over 250 yards and two touchdowns in six games, and facing a CLE defense that gave up over 30 points last week makes Mayfield a boom-or-bust option with top-8 upside.

3

CARSON WENTZ (MIN) @ CHI

He wasn't even that great last week, throwing for under 150 yards, but the three touchdowns compensate for the low volume. Facing a division rival that had a historically bad defensive performance against a "bad" offense by expectation, we don't know how much each side was responsible. I'm betting the CAR offense is not above average and caught fire against a below-average defense dealing with injuries that will improve as it gets healthier. Wentz threw for over 300 yards twice in five games last season and is capable of being a spot start as a last-resort option.

4

TYLER SHOUGH (NO) @ BAL

Coming off an impressive performance last week, when he threw for a career-high 410 yards and three touchdowns, I wanted to temper expectations. That said, the floor isn't particularly high compared to other names, and while the matchup isn't great, it's not bad either. I believe this NO offense to be slightly better than IND's offense with Daniel Jones coming back from injury. I wouldn't spend a lot of money to roster him off waivers, but I wouldn't be afraid to start him if I don't have a top-10 QB on my roster.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM