

WEEK 3 DEF STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR TEAMS ON LESS THAN 75% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

MINNESOTA VIKINGS @ TB

This may be the last chance you'll get to pick them up off waivers, as I imagine they will be an every-week starter considering how impressive they were against two "good" offenses, even if the weather was the main reason last week. Generating four sacks and forcing multiple turnovers in back-to-back games is impressive, and they are facing a TB offense that has given up at least three sacks and a turnover in both games. This is my top option because they face MIA next, making this a two-week top streaming option.

CINCINNATI BENGALS @ PIT

It's wild how much can change in a year. While it's still early and they have faced a couple of decent matchups, they have outperformed expectations, generating four sacks in back-to-back games. Now they face a PIT offense that has failed to surpass 14 points in both games and has given up multiple sacks and a turnover each game. Regardless of whether Michael Pittman plays, even as a divisional opponent, I'm confident this defense is a high-upside top-12 streaming option that could be an every-week starter worth a shot.

KANSAS CITY CHIEFS @ MIA

I'm not saying to avoid streaming this defense; I wouldn't make them my first option. We know the MIA offense is bad, and they failed to score more than 14 points in back-to-back games. Yes, this defense forced a turnover in both games, but last week's performance wasn't great, and I can't take much from either game. In Week 1, they forced four sacks and last week zero while giving up 30 points. That said, I would consider them a high-floor option, but I wouldn't pass up other alternatives, since this will be one of the most popular options.

GREEN BAY PACKERS VS ATL

I'm not thrilled about this since they have looked inconsistent at best. They generated at least three sacks in back-to-back games, but forcing only one turnover during that span is disappointing. This suggestion is more because of the matchup, even if Michael Penix returns. I wouldn't expect him to come out of the gates hot and be a little rusty. That said, I am not expecting a top-10 performance from this defense, as Bijan Robinson and Drake London will have an impact. I would consider them a last-resort option if I miss out on the above.
