

WEEK 3 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 90% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

BRYCE YOUNG (CAR) @ CLE

It's important not to overreact, but Young has been great, throwing over 275 yards and three touchdowns in consecutive games. Sure, the defenses weren't amazing, but he has another matchup against a CLE defense that's capable, but not necessarily one to avoid. Before everyone else hops on the bandwagon, I consider him one of the best streaming options, especially with DET the following week, which has given up 30+ points each game. I won't expect three touchdowns, but a high-floor top-12 performance is reasonable.

2

C.J. STROUD (HOU) @ IND

Losing your top two WRs last week and still throwing over 350 yards is still impressive even if the fantasy numbers don't look like it. The rushing offense seems inconsistent, so I can't see this team relying on the run game to score the majority of HOU's points. If Nico returns, he is one of my top streaming options; if not, he's still worth considering, facing an IND defense that has given up at least 33 points in both games. I wouldn't roster him until I know more about Nico's availability, but he's a solid last-minute pivot.

3

TYLER SHOUGH (NO) VS LV

After two impressive performances, he has thrown for over 250 yards and a touchdown in both games. Last week he showed off his rushing ability, scoring a touchdown and leading the team in rush attempts. While I don't expect that to be normal, if he can be a redzone threat, then that would boost his upside to a top-10 QB. Facing a LV defense that has played better than expectations, I'm not expecting Shough to have his best performance of the season. Still, I do think he will have opportunities to continue his brief streak and be a last-resort top-15 option.

4

KYLER MURRAY (MIN) @ TB

I was going to suggest Jared Goff again, but he's likely rostered in most leagues, so I'll choose someone who has substantially more risk. Coming off an injury, we haven't really seen what Murray looks like in this offense, and they are facing a TB defense that has given up over 225 passing yards and a touchdown in back-to-back games. Another factor is Jordan Mason's injury, which forces the MIN offense to rely on Aaron Jones. While there's a wide range of outcomes, I like the upside, making him a boom-or-bust last-resort option.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM