

WEEK 4 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 90% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

TYLER SHOUGH (NO) VS ATL

He has continued to impress, and I think it's time to recognize him as an every-week starter, considering he has thrown for over 250 yards and a touchdown in every game this season and three touchdowns in two of those. While this ATL defense looked good last week, they have given up at least 20 points in two games. Outcomes vary, and he may not be a top-12 option because of the divisional matchup, but the upside cannot be ignored; he's a solid streaming option because he's the engine of the NO offense with Travis Etienne's injury.

MARCUS MARIOTA (WAS) VS IND

Coming off a great performance last week against a good SEA defense, I'm not expecting him to repeat those numbers. However, facing an IND defense that's in the bottom five in yards and points per game, this is a good matchup for a top-12-15 performance. Last season, Mariota had six games in which he threw for over 200 yards and a touchdown, while rushing for at least 40 yards in four of them. Add in Stefon Diggs, and it's not unreasonable to consider him a solid streaming option in case you miss out on the above options.

SAM DARNOLD (SEA) VS LAC

Coming back from injury, despite the loss, he threw for over 350 yards and four touchdowns. While I don't expect him to come close to that, I think half of that is conservative, with a good chance for a bit more. Facing a LAC team that's struggling on offense and giving up at least 24 points in every game this season, he will be one of my preferred streaming options. Even if LAC gets their offense together, that will only help the game script for Darnold, making him a high-floor option with top-ten upside.

4

BO NIX (DEN) @ SF

It was either him or Geno Smith vs. CHI, and I chose the QB with the slightly higher upside. While this is a good SF defense on paper, injuries made them look beatable last week against ARI, allowing 30 points. While Nix himself has been inconsistent at best, the floor is quite low, yet he did throw for 2 touchdowns and rush for one last week, something he did only twice last season. I expect SF to score 20+ points, forcing DEN to keep up, which makes Nix a last-resort boom-or-bust option.
