

WEEK 6 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 85% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

JORDAN LOVE (GB) VS DAL

Coming off the best game of his season, he's been solid but not impressive, failing to reach 200 yards twice so far, but he's thrown two touchdowns in every game so far, making him a decent streaming option. Facing a DAL defense that's bottom ten in total yards and points allowed per game, Love will have opportunities to score to keep up with DAL's offense that's top ten in points scored. For GB to win, they need Love to continue throwing multiple touchdowns, making him one of the top streaming options.

2

KIRK COUSINS (LV) VS BUF

I'll admit that my skepticism over the LV offense has cost me some good streaming performances, as Cousins has been impressive, throwing multiple touchdowns in his first four games and reaching 240 yards in three. At the same time, he faced decent matchups (MIA, LAC, NO), and last week offered a glimpse of what may happen against an above-average defense. However, against a BUF defense that ranks in the bottom ten in passing yards and points allowed per game, and with an over/under of 50 points, Cousins is a high-upside top-12 streaming option.

3

BRYCE YOUNG (CAR) @ PHI

Coming out of the bye week, he's been impressive, throwing over 280 yards in four games with multiple touchdowns in three. While the PHI matchup isn't great, they're bottom-ten in passing yards allowed per game and have given up at least 20 points in every game except last week. Projected to be a low-scoring game (over/under of 42), there's additional risk. However, PHI's injuries help Young, and unless Saquon Barkley and DeVonta Smith return, I'll keep streaming Young as one of the safer, lower-upside options.

4

JAMEIS WINSTON (NYG) VS NO

Now it gets a little tricky, as I was deciding between him and Brissett on the road against a decent LAR defense. Winston is coming off an impressive stretch, throwing over 300 yards and three touchdowns in back-to-back games. While it wasn't against great defenses (ARI & WAS), they are facing a NO defense that's bottom-ten in total yards and points allowed per game. While it's not projected to be a high-scoring game (over/under is 45), neither side is heavily favored, making Winston a boom-or-bust option.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM