WEEK 9 QB STREAMERS

LOOKING FOR PLAYERS ON LESS THAN 80% OF ROSTERS IN YAHOO

1

KIRK COUSINS (LV) @ SF

Coming off one of his better performances, he has thrown for over 240 yards and multiple touchdowns in six of his last seven games. I don't like the matchup against a good SF defense, but it's projected to be a somewhat high-scoring game (over/under 51 points). There's a path to a top-12 game, but I think it has to come through garbage time, which is always risky. Despite that, I prefer to stream a decent passing offense with their top playmakers healthy, making him one of the preferred options.

2

MICHAEL PENIX JR. (ATL) VS CIN

I'm going to blame the weather for last week's abomination, considering Penix has thrown over 200 yards in every game prior. He has also flashed some upside, throwing three touchdowns in two of his last three. Facing an inconsistent CIN defense that's bottom ten in passing yards allowed per game and has allowed more than 21 points in four of their last five games. With a projected over/under of 51 points, it gives me a little confidence in streaming him as a boom-or-bust option with top-ten upside.

3

SAM DARNOLD (SEA) VS ARI

While he struggled last week, he managed to throw multiple touchdowns, something he's done once in his last four games against some decent defenses (SF, DEN, KC). While the ARI defense isn't bad, they're not good enough to avoid after the recent matchups. They have given up at least 30 points in six of their last seven games, so there's some upside, especially being a divisional matchup. However, I would prefer the above names and would consider him a high-floor, boom-or-bust streaming option.

4

MALIK WILLIS VS DET

It was a tough decision between him and Bo Nix @ CAR, but I decided to swing for the fences, considering Willis has looked better recently, throwing over 200 yards and multiple touchdowns in back-to-back games. Unfortunately, his rushing production is inconsistent, but if he does run, he has a rushing touchdown in two of his last three games. Facing a DET defense in the bottom ten in passing yards and points allowed per game, we may get another solid top-15 performance, albeit quite risky.

FOLLOW US @AKAMAIFANTASY

WWW.AKAIMAIFANTASYFOOTBALL.COM